It's Time To Help

Tonight, the annual Cumberland Community Chest campaign gets underway to raise the money necessary to support its nine member agencies for another year

Workers already have been enlisted and teams lined up for the campaign, and its success will depend upon their diligence to some extent, but even more will it depend upon your generosity.

The goal this year has been set at $105,977.76. This figure was arrived at after long and thorough deliberation by the Chest's budget committee, a volunteer group as are other Chest workers, who studied the fund requests of the various agencies.

In these days of inflation, when costs of all kinds continue to mount, this is not a high figure, particularly when it is taken into consideration that the total must be divided among nine agencies plus a generous contribution to the United Service Organizations, better known as the USO.

Our endorsement of the campaign goes without

The Community Chest was organized to prevent campaign after campaign for solicitation of funds by individual agencies to meet their financial needs.

You may say that we still have one campaign after another but you must admit that the one Community Chest campaign pays the way of all its nine agencies and that they do not conduct individual campaigns. If they did, there could be nine more campaigns than we now have and you would be expected to contribute just as much of your money to each. With the Community Chest you give once for nine agencies and that's it.

Unfortunate as it is, there are some people less fortunate than we, not by choice but by chance, and it falls to the lot of those whom Dame Fortune has favored to assist those against whom she has turned

Funds raised by the Community Chest campaign help to feed hungry people in our community, they help to clothe them, they help provide for youngsters recreation of a type they could never afford, they provide them with the advantages of the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts and they provide, among many other things, facilities for child care.

Naturally, in such widespread activity there must be some paid employes and the Community Chest eampaign helps to pay the salaries of those who administer these programs so vital to the present and future of our community.

Suffice it to say about the USO that it helps to assure the servicemen and women overseas that those of us at home have not forgotten

Your contribution and sacrifice in money, individually and jointly, can make many people happy. Let's all dig in to put our Community Chest campaign over the top.

For Oldsters Only

An entirely new type of graduate school in two respects, the Cold Spring Project, opened October 1 at Cold Spring-on-Hudson, N. Y. It has a strictly oneyear course and its students are restricted to carefully screened college graduates at least 60 years old. Tuition, which includes dormitory room and meals, is $3,000, a figure that by itself will operate to do part of the screening. The highly worthy object of the school, which is set up by the Walt Foundation, is to enable aging men and women to put to greater enjoyment their remaining years.

"Wisdom, tolerance and experience" may be looked for in older persons no longer bound by business and family ties, said Miss Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar, at the school's preview. It is for the continued cultivation of these qualities and the building up of satisfying avocations that this school was founded.

The school will have lectures, discussions and study on politics, foreign affairs, liberal arts and sciences. supplemented by workshops and gardens for the cultivation of hobbies. The type of student to be admitted is counted on to spread the good work among classmates and alumni associations.

Unhappy, indeed, is the aging man or woman with nothing to do. One would expect those who are collegetrained to have sensed through the years the need of building up avocations against the day of retirement. All too often it is not so. Even the knowledge of the existence of such a school as this, with present limitations of 35 students, may be an impetus to many who could never hope to attend it.

Rosenbergs' Death Nearer

When the Supreme Court re-convened on Monday it had before it a second appeal to review the death sentences passed upon Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. The Court has already, on October 13, refused a review (Justice Black dissenting), and the justices are quite unlikely to reverse themselves. The date of execution was held up until the second appeal should be passed

The Rosenbergs were convicted in March 1951 after a jury trial in New York City, of espionage in having transmitted atomic secrets to Russia. The death penalty was involved because the crime was committed while the U.S. was at war.

The present appeal declares, among other things, that the accusation against the young couple was tantamount to one of treason, so that they should have been tried under the anti-treason laws, not under the anti-espionage laws. The Constitution, of course, lays down special safeguards for those accused of treason.

It would appear that the only chance of escape for the Rosenbergs from the electric chair lies in clemency by the President. On July 24 President Truman commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence passed upon Oscar Collazo, Puerto Rican nationalist, for an assassination attempt on the President in which a Presidential guard was shot to death. The chief reason for any similar clemency to the Rosenbergs, if it can be called a reason, would be that they had conspired to aid Russia, not after that country had become openly hostile to the United States, but while we were still collaborating with it as a war

Escaping Reality With Fumes

Addiction to the inhalation of gasoline fumes is a new one to me. The case in question was a youngster 11 years old which was reported in a recent issue of the Journal of Pediatrics. It represents an excellent example of medical detective work by the division of child psychiatry, University of

The boy was taken to the clinic because of nervousness, daydreaming, and depression. Questioning revealed that since the age of 5 he had inhaled gasoline fumes periodically and also had acquired the tobacco habit and was smoking a package of cigarets daily. The child was pale, slender, tense, and in need of help. His home life had never been satisfactory. The father was said to be an alcoholic and the constant marital discord had resulted in many attempts on the part of the parents to separate and an equal number of reconciliations. But so far as the youngster was concerned, the climax was reached with the divorce of his parents and the death of his paternal grandfather, to whom he

Doctors Robert L. Faucett and Reynold A. Jensen found the boy depressed and anxious. He withdrew from others in the ward, bit his fingernails, and cried on the slightest provocation. His physicians were patient and after several days began to gain his confidence. But they realized there was more to the story and because they were pressed for time and the lad lived many miles away from the clinic they decided to question him while under the influence of a sedative (sodium amytal). The boy took his interviewers back to the time when he was 5 years old and described the hallucinations he developed whenever he inhaled gasoline fumes. He talked with "little horrid men who came out of the ground and threatened him with death.'

These were frightening experiences for the youngster, but they appeared to be related to the rift that existed in his family, for which he felt responsible. At any rate, the interview opened the door to a tangible subject for future discussions. Originally the "little men" were friendly and offered the companionship the lad's father withheld. Because the father was abusive and disturbed him and his mother, the child "just had to" breathe gasoline fumes to escape During his hallucinat he plotted with these gremlins to force his father to move away so that his mother and he could be happy on the farm.

But the blow came when the "little men" turned against him. which forced the boy to renew his gasoline fume addiction. After the divorce of his parents and the death of the grandfather, the patient and his mother moved back to the country. After each interview at the clinic the lad was told more and more about the true nature of his hallucinations which he began to understand as the basis for his strange behavior. His anxiety disappeared gradually, as well as nail biting and crying spells. Appetite improved, he gained weight, and he was able to return home a changed boy. Here we have an illustration of the good results obtained through patient and skillful psychiatric care.

Ike's First Supreme Court Vacancy May Be Felix Frankfurter; HST Will Stay In Washington To Needle; Dulles Doesn't Quite Fit Ike's Groove

WASHINGTON - It's an ironic twist of fate that the first Supreme Court «vacancy President Eisenhower will have to fill will probably be that of an ardent New Dealer, Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Day after tomorrow, Frankfurter has the right to retire on full salary, having reached the age of 70. And since Frankfurter was one of the early Roosevelt men who proposed that Supreme Court justices should get off the bench at that age, it would be consistent for him to do so.

However, a strange thing has happened to Justice Frankfurter. Though he's accused by Republican critics of being an architect of the New Deal and the man who's inspired the Acheson policies, actually he's become a strong Eisenhower man.

Gradually he's drifted away from the Truman administration. now has few friends left high up in government except the secretary of State. Meanwhile, some of his old friends, such as Jack Mcformer secretary of War, have become Ike's strongest backers.

And with McCloy slated high on the list to be secretary of State, Frankfurter may end up being just as close to the State Department under the Eisenhower administration as during the Truman administration.

Though Frankfurter could retire from the Supreme Court this week. private betting among the jurists is that he won't. Probably he'll remain on until after Jan. 20, when Eisenhower could appoint his successor-unless he wants to make a vacancy for his old friend and student, Dean Acheson. If so, he'll resign before January, giving Truman a chance to give Acheson an interim appointment.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Formation Of The Cabinet

In the United States, cabinet officers are secretaries and assistants to the President. They hold office at his option. They are elected to no office and have no independent constituencies. They usually are members of the President's party, although he may appoint citizens who are of the opposite party or of no party at all.

President-elect Eisenhower will have a difficult time choosing his cabinet, because of his newness to political life. With hardly a working majority in either house of Congress, he is politically dependent upon a Republican-Southern Democrat coalition through which he must get appropriations for his various departments. That coalition can make or break his administration, because they can withhold, reduce, or delay appropriations. Committees of Congress can also hold up confirmation of persons he appoints or can delay such ratifications or hold unpleasant and prolonged hearings in public. Each member of the cabinet has to be confirmed by the Senate.

Guess-lists, issued by various prophets, of prospective cabinet officers have most of them coming from the Eastern Seaboard-principally New York. This is politically impossible. The basic strength of his party is still in the Middle West. which cannot be ignored in cabinet appointments. If New York gets two seats, it may prove one too many. California has the Vice President and therefore more than one cabinet member from California would be high. The Southern Democrats who deserted party regularity to vote for Eisenhower are entitled to cabinet recognition. The Taft Republicans, who constitute the largest element in the Republican party, will have to be recognized.

Geographical appointments are normal to American political life. It is a recognition of the structure of American society based upon our history. We are a federation of 48 sovereign states.

Furthermore, New York is disliked and distrusted in most parts of the United States, the assumption being that it is a city divided between Wall Street plutocrats and Stork Club wisecrackers. Organization Republicans, who have labored in the desert for 20 years, will expect recognition.

The Republican party consists of three basic elements: 1. The Taft

Republicans; 2. The Young Republicans (since 1932); 3. The New Republicans, (those who came into the party with Eisenhower)

Amity was achieved within the party largely through the efforts of Robert A. Taft and Herbert Hoover. It can almost be said that Taft campaigned as hard as Eisenhower did. That was essential, as otherwise a large number of Republicans would not have voted-enough possibly to change the outcome of the election. Herbert Hoover fought the tendency to sabotage Eisenhower from the day Eisenhower was nominated. It can be said that the Republican party had not been as unified since 1928 as it was in 1952 and that Taft and Hoover achieved that unity for Eisenhower.

The young Republicans were divided between the Taft and Eisenhower elements. They have had no governmental experience, except perhaps in Congress or in offices under the New Deal during the war. However, many of them have been effective party workers during the past 20 years. In the course of the next decade, they will take over the Republican party and will run it. Most of them must be idealistically Republicans or they would not have chosen careers in a defeated party and staved with it through the bleak years of failure.

The New Republicans have no history in the Republican party except in this campaign. Few even know their names. Their loyalty is to Eisenhower the man, not the party. Politically, they are expected to wait their turn. If too many are elevated to high position before they have won confidence, it may hurt Eisenhower's chances of having smooth sailing in Congress.

Were the Republican working majorities in the two houses of Congress notable, these distinctions would not matter. However with the slim majority that the Republicans have (no actual working majority in either house), the greatest care must be taken to maintain the unity in the party achieved during the campaign. This will require political astuteness of the highest order. Roosevelt had a prolonged honeymoon period: Eisenhower will not have that because the Democrats will seek to rebuild their party as rapidly as possible, with a view to recapturing Congress in 1954. That is why cabinet appointments the job.

are so important. (Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

for Germany, and Kenneth Royall, fashioned Georgetown and until he comes back from his trip around

This means the ex-President is going to be a potential thorn in the side of the Eisenhower administration for some time to come.

When Herbert Hoover left the White House he lived in New York, said little, moved about little, for a time was almost forgotten. He came to Washington only twice during the entire Roosevelt administration; in fact, didn't get back in the limelight until Truman appointed him head of a postwar food committee, later head of a commission on government reorganization. Hoover was so grateful he made a speech at the Gridiron Club in almost tearful praise of Truman.

But with the present outgoing President, things will be different. Determined to see that historians correctly view his record, HST is going to stick around. He is going to be in there pitching, correcting, battling as a private citizen to the very end.

Secretary Of State??

Those who have talked to the President-elect about cabinet posts come away with the distinct impression that he is not going to appoint John Foster Dulles as secretary of State, and that this allimportant post is more likely to go to Paul Hoffman, the Marshall Plan administrator, or John J. McCloy, former high commissioner to Germany. Both are extremely able, with competent know-how in foreign affairs.

While Dulles also has a rich foreign-affairs background, Eisenhower doesn't seem quite comfortable with him. Their relationship is similar to that of Truman and Jimmy Byrnes, who was so aggressive and had so much knowhow that he sometimes overshadowed his boss.

Paul Hoffman, on the other hand, has been taken back into the full favor of the Eisenhower smile. For a time Hoffman was on the outs. One of the original Ike-rooters and chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, Hoffman soured a bit when the general embraced McCarthy and all the other isolationists. But toward the end he flew back from California and came out strong for Eisenhower.

Jack McCloy probably has the best of all backgrounds to be secretary of State. He served as assistant secretary of War under FDR, then head of the World Bank, then took over the tough job of administering Germany, knows his European onions thoroughly. GOPolitics

Ike and advisers are plenty peeved at the top-heavy Negro vote for Stevenson. This has nothing to do with it, but there'll be no Negro members of the cabinet, as Ike once speculated There will also be no woman in the cabinet-at least not yet. However, a women will be put on the Social Security Board or similar welfare agency Mary Lord of New York, a co-chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, will get a sub-cabinet post . . . Other GOP women listed for rewards are Mrs. Ivy Priest, head of the Republican's Women's Division; Clare Boothe Luce, glamorgirl audior and wife of the publisher; Mrs. Katherine Howard, national committeewoman for Massachusetts; and Oveta Clup Hobby, former head of the WACs. now a Texas publisher. . . . High on the Eisenhower job list is Ralph Cake of Oregon Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire and Sen. Fred Seaton of Nebraska have made it clear they're not seeking cabinet posts. They'll serve if needed, but aren't pushing. Both have now gone home and Ike keeps asking where they are. Ex-Gov. Val Peterson of Nebraska is slated to be undersecretary of Agriculture-if he wants

Here's an easy guide as to which government officials will be fired

Today In Washington By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The Presidential campaign of 1956 has begun already. This should not be surprising. For, while the general public hasn't always realized that the day after election the planning for the next campaign starts. The maneuvers are usually visible to the political leaders of both sides. Wilson Wyatt, campaign manager for Governor Stevenson, wants the Illinois governor to stay before the public with the idea of running again in 1956. Many of the admirers of the governor feel he is a man of destiny in politics. They look to him rather than to Truman for leadership and do not hesitate to say so openly.

On the Republican side, the talk of 1956 is even more pronounced, Of what avail would it be, ask the Republicans, to wirf in 1952 and stay in power for only four years? Obviously the planning is to make the kind of record which will mean re-election for Eisenhower.

First and foremost in the minds of all the Republican leaders is the problem of a possible depression. It is universally agreed that another depression during a Republican administration would drive the party out of power in 1956 for decades to come

Hope For Private Spending It is significant how much conversation there is among the Republican leaders about the importance cf avoiding a depression. One reason is that the economists from various groups, including some from the labor unions, have been saying for the last year that, if armament expenses are seriously curtailed, there will be unemployment. The Republicans are committed to the cutting of expenses in order to reduce taxes.

The Republicans, however, have been discussing plans to keep the production of the nation at high levels irrespective of some diminution in government spending, and the idea seems to be to let the armament expense taper off while private spending takes up the slack. Confidence in the future among busienss men has taken such a decided turn for the better since the election that it would not be surprising to see private spending stimulated to extraordinary levels in the next few years.

Many studies have been made in government circles on the question of transferring from an armament economy to something normal. It is realized that there will be a certain armament base for many years to come due to the "cold war" and that the real issue is how to put the armament program on a plateau of spending while the private investment side builds up. The question is complex but, from a political point of view, it s already important to note that the Republican leaders haven't the slightest intention of "letting nature take its course." They are bound to use governmental machinery when it becomes necessary. This doesn't mean that inflation as such will be permitted to continue. For the idea now is to cut enough government expense so as to get out of the red and deal a body blow to inflation. The objective is to depend on increased volume of business to furnish increased employment and greater productivity to bring lower prices. The most far-reaching consequence of the election has hardly come to general notice as yet. It is the fact that, whereas for nearly 2 years business has regarded the government as its enemy or opponent, the next four years will see an entirely different attitude on the part of government toward business and toward government by business. This means an era of constructive co-operation. It means a change in climate in Washington because the major problems involving the economic future of the country cannot be solved without the help of business men. The Truman administration has occasionally asked business men to come down to Washington but has had a major number of declinations. Working for an administration hostile to business didn't attract volunteers to the government service from the ranks of business. Congressional Moves Coming

The situation will be different now. Business men will not feel that, if they bring ideas to Washington, these will be rejected without a fair hearing. As for the political moves looking toward 1956, the first steps will be taken when Congress convenes in January. A certain amount of attack will probably continue through investigating committees, especially on the corruption front, because many of the irregularities have not yet been fully disclosed. A certain amount of activity will be carried on by the Senate's International Security Committee, which may be headed by Senator Ferguson of Michigan, Republican, instead of Senator McCarran, Democrat, though, since it's a subcommittee, there isn't any good reason why the Nevada senator shouldn't continue as chairman if his colleagues on the Judiciary Committee wish him to do so. He has done a splendid

The Joint Economic Committee will probably be headed up by Senator Taft, as it was in the 80th Congress. This is an important fact-finding body. The President's Council of Economic Advisers is being widely discussed among the Republicans so that the best possible men will be appointed to it.

There are many signs that the Republicans are determined to avoid a depression and that, if one shows up on the horizon, they plan to deal swiftly with it so that 1956 will permit them to say, "You never had it so good."

Depressions are political poison. The depression of 1893 was almost fatal to the Democratic party, and it never came back till 1912 because the Republicans didn't fail to remind the electorate of it in every campaign. The depression of 1929 defeated the Republicans in 1932 and the Democrats have been reminding the country of it ever since. So the avoidance of a deon is a task the Republicans have very much in mind today as they look forward not to just four years but to at least eight years of

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Cartload Of Brick

Viewed from this perspective, President-elect Eisenhower's task looks even more staggeringly difficult than it did in America. The most rapid sounding of the situation over here is enough to dredge up a whole series of acutely unpleasant facts, all of which bear very directly on the success or failure of the new American administration. First, Gen. Eisenhower and his advisers ought to realize immediately that throughout Europe, the Republican victory is now being taken as an isolationist victory. Informed high officials think that this is probably the case. The less informed general public is convinced of it.

It may seem pretty ridiculous, in view of Gen. Eisenhower's own past record. But in these nervous capitals over here, serious and sober men now think that Sen. Robert A. Taft will probably design the new American foreign policy, while Gen. Douglas Mac-Arthur plans the new defense policy. The friends of America are discouraged and all but ready to by Eisenhower and which will keep their jobs. In general, the limousine-riders-those who have chauffeurs-will be replaced. The taxi riders, bus riders and trolley-car riders will hold on to their jobs. There'll be a lot of changes at the White House after Jan. 20, including a change from bourbon and branch water to Scotch and soda—Ike's favorite. The vice president-to-be, Senator Nixon, has hinted he will try to block filibusters by rulings from the chair. (His colleagues will never let him get away with it.) . . . Governor Stevenson has told his personal advisers that he doesn't want to run the Democratic party, would rather quit politics. However, Wilson Wyatt and Sen. Bill Fulbright of Arkansas persuaded him to put off a final decision until February.

He doesn't sign his name with green ink, but Republicans are boasting about a "Jim Farley" of their own-Ab Hermann, former GOP executive director, who has managed seven GOP senatorial campaigns in New Jersey without single loss. run for cover. The anti-Americans are crowing with triumph If Gen. Eisenhower genuinely intends to adhere to the broad principles of foreign policy in which he has always believed, he cannot say so too soon or too loudly.

Different Factors Involved

Second, and much more significant, Gen. Eisenhower will take office in the midst of a major crisis in America's relations with the other Western allies. This crisis has been building up behind the scenes during the period when America's whole attention was concentrated on domestic politics. It has been made worse by the widespread fear of Republican intentions. This fear is making matters worse. But what is far more important, the crisis can hardly be met unless Gen. Eisenhower temporarily sets aside the Republican projects for economy in foreign and defense spending. For a while, in truth, the job of cementing the Western alliance is virtually certain to demand heavier spending, not less spending. The alternative would seem to be the gradual deterioration of the Western united front against Soviet aggression, the gradual petering out of the Western defense effort, and the eventual extension of Soviet power into new and vital provinces which are now precariously held by the West.

This ugly situation is the result of the inter-action of several different factors. The French problem in Indo-China has grown more acute. Partly because of the drain of Indo-China, the great project of the European Defense Community is in growing danger here in Paris. This in turn directly threatens the plans for strengthening Europe's defenses with German divisions.

The future of NATO, Gen. Eisenhower's own masterwork in the postwar years, will be menaced if the German divisions do not become available. NATO is also menaced by the extreme economic strain afflicting both Britain and the European member-countries. Dependence Becoming Unpalatable

Meanwhile the system of American money subsidies to our allies. which has accomplished so much in the past, is now ceasing to be politically practical because the resulting dependence on America is growing too unpalatable. Britain and France, especially, are looking for a radical re-adjustment of the economic relationships between the United States and the other Western allies. Bold measures are need-(Continued on Page 21, Col. 8)

It doesn't seem possible now that the U.S. and U.S.S.R. can agree on a successor. But the others will vote one in, somehow.

The secretary general's is the top administration job of the organization. He and his staff are, in effect, the first citizens of the world. They "shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the organization.'

The secretary general can bring before the Security Council "any matter which in his opinion may threaten . . . peace and security.' He is charged with getting up the annual report. It was Lie, more than anybody else, who first branded the North Koreans as the aggressors, and encouraged U. N. counteraction.

Lie's last days, and many of his earlier ones in U.N., were not happy. The lumbering Norwegian began to develop grave pessimism about the future of the organization several years ago. He was indignant about the way the Russians treated him when he came up for reelection to an office for which they had first proposed him.

He was bewildered, too, by the recent congressional probe of Communists among the American members of the secretariat. He found himself having to fire some employees for the very beliefs which were considered mandatory in Russian, Polish, Czechoslovakian and other members of the secretariat.

Lie had a tough job. He had to front for the organization during that stage of its early life when it was told bluntly by aroused citizens in Westchester-first proposed New York permanent headquarters -that they wanted no part of it in their community.

His halting English, his floridly foreign manner and nerve-frazzling voice were disturbingly different from the concept of many Americans as to how a diplomat should look and sound. He was the one who had to make, or at least announce, decisions affecting relations between the U.N. and sometimes hostile Americans just over the imaginary border.

His approval of a pretty landscaped approach to U.N.'s permanent HQ, for example, meant that an entire city block (including a 99-year old church and much needed school) had to be scraped away. The people of the block, heartily anti-lie, took their protest all the way to Pope Pius XII.

He was also the confused center of the long argument over whether there should be a prayer room or mediation parlor in the new headquarters. He thought there should be, but had the problem of ordering one which would offend none of the myriad religions represented in U.N. He also had to oppose the Russian view that since there is

49ers Retain Offense Lead

Cleveland Gains In Pro League

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12 (A) -The San Francisco 49ers held onto their top spot as the National Football League's leading offensive team last weekend, but the Cleveland Browns whittled down their margin.

Cleveland racked up 83 more yards gained than San Francisco last Sunday, but the 49ers total of 2536 still led the pack. Cleveland. with 979 yards gained rushing and 1490 passing, has a total of 2469. San Francisco had gained 1355 rushing in seven games and 1181 in the air.

The 49ers ground offensive total also was tops in that department. 194 yards better than the runnerup Chicago Cardinals.

The Browns clung to their edge in the passing department with 1490 yards gobbled up in that manner. San Francisco's 1181 is second. Punting honors also went to Cleveland with an average of 48.3

an average of 44.6. The 49ers' 201 points was the most scored by any team in the league. Green Bay's Packers filled the number two spot with 171.

Leading defense teams was the Detroit Lions, who have allowed opponents only 2.9 yards per rushing attempt.

When you take your car to an Esso Dealer Station for gasoline, or that important Fall oil change and check-up -you're not really "doing business" directly with Esso Standard Oil Company, even though we make the fine products you get.

Instead, these 25,000 Esso Dealers from Maine to Louisiana are local, independent business men. You deal with the owners themselves-men who have invested their money and their initiative in building their own futures on serving you.

From many competing brands of gasoline and oil, these local business men have chosen Esso products. Year after year, they have seen firsthand evidence of the satisfaction to the buyer that Esso quality stands for.

As of today, these able business men have, on the average, handled Esso products for 12 years each. Many have bought from us for 35 and 40 years-some even longer.

Obviously, we couldn't do business without these men. And naturally we're proud of them-just as proud of them as we are of the 28,750 workers who are on our company

Both groups - our own employees and these "partners" in their independent businesses-express this company's basic belief that individual enterprise, given its fair chance to earn fair rewards-is the best way and the American way to make progress with and for all the people of this country.

Preston County Man Wins Prize In Conservation

West Virginia Farmers Honored

Joe Montgomery of Preston County, W. Va., placed second in the 1952 West Virginia Soil Conservation Contest and was awarded a $50 savings bond last night at the annual meeting of the West Virginia Soil Conservation District Supervisors last night at Jackson's

Two other farmers from nearby West Virginia counties were awarded pen and pencil sets as district winners. They are R. E. Lutz of Berkeley County and James Webs ter of Hampshire County.

The top state prize went to Roy Groves, who operates a dairy farm about five miles east of Summersville in Nicholas County. He was presented a gold watch last night at Jackson's Mill by John Lough of the Baltimore and Ohio Railthe contest. Other cooperating tricts, West Virginia University and the State Soil Conservation

Groves was selected as the winner because of the completeness of and progress made on his soil conservation program. All of his farm land is being farmed according to its land use capability. The farm consists of 89 acres, 75 of which are cleared. All of the cleared land is in grass. Ample pasture is produced for the 50 head of dairy stock and enough hay is produced For Coming Year for all of the cattle except 10 heifers being wintered off the farm

Built-In Tie Pin

ASHION: If you ever have trouble locating your tie clasp or pin, you can ease your difficulties with a new tie pattern, just on the market. It has the pin-a cloth replica of it, that is-woven or embroidered into the otherwise plain-colored cravat at the appropriate place. Radio-TV star Frank Waldecker (at right) tries one of the new ties.

Handyman: A tin can makes a good storage rack for a soldering iron. That way, iron can put away without waiting for it to cool. . . . Bothered with steamed up bathroom after you take shower? Just turn on cold water to clear up the steam.

Apparel Notes: Singer Ray Steele points out that if you wear a black tie with blue stripes you're dressed as an old Etonian. When it's blue and red you look like a member of the Guards Regiment. . . . Waldecker's pseudo tie pin Mimic Arthur Blake wears a dress shirt with ruffles down the front. . . . The Duke of Windsor wears a Norfolk jacket and plus-fours!

Motor Hints: In rainy weather the rhythm of your windshield wiper acts as a soporific-and can make you drowsy. Vary its speed every once in a while. . . . As with clothes, get spots out of car upholstery as soon as possible, before they "set."

New: An unbreakable plastic flask which, when squeezed, automatically measures out a one-ounce jigger! . . . You can get a paint roller with an "extend-a-handle" which lets you reach right up to the ceil-. And a "Heat-Timer" valve which, attached to radiators, allows you to have the desired temperature in each room-and save Odd Notes: One dining room in New York's Hotel Edison makes it ing the suffering of cancer victims. Naturally, as Larry Crosby told me, it is just in the formative stages. "But we are already in contact and working with doctors at a naval hospital," he said.

Dixie, herself, did not know she had cancer, nor did her doctors, until it was too late to help her.

Just wonderful news that Ann Sothern, who had such a bad time with her health for so long, is to have one of the biggest TV shows on the air.

She has just signed a deal with the American Tobacco Company whereby she will be on every Sunday evening, with Jack Benny appearing with her every 4th week. Any show with Jack Benny is sure fire, to say nothing of Ann's own crisp style of delivery.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Beautiful, blonde Kay Spreckles, divorce troubles behind her, leaves for New York and two TV shows tomorrow. Yes, she's resuming her career.

Mary Martin, long away from the USA in London, flies home Dec. 7 to sing the new Rodgers and Hammerstein song, "There's Musie in You" for "From Main Street to Broadway."

Despite denials the Gary Moores are filing for divorce in California. Rosemary Colligan, pretty model, took George Raft home to meet the family. George charmed both Ma and Pa. As for marriage, George isn't free and hasn't been free for years and years.

Paulette Goddard's romance is still on with Eric Remarque and she makes no denial that this is it! Congratulations to the Sam Katzmans, who just celebrated their 24th happy anniversary.

British Actress Joan Rice had bad news for Martin Boyce, her fiance before she left for the South Seas to make "His Majesty Okeefe." When she returns to London she'll tell him it's all off, matrimonially speaking.
